Type	Description
Spread Cost:	Spot foreign exchange currency pairs; spot metals; Indices; Commodity Derivatives and Cryptocurrency Derivative transactions incur costs relating to the spread, which is the difference between the bid and ask price. The “bid” price is the price at which we are willing to buy the underlying instrument from you and the “offer” price is the price at which we are willing to sell to you. Sometimes, in order to trade on our platforms, we will convert your money into, say, USD and this is an example of when physical delivery does occur. Taking the example of a foreign currency trade, we buy currency on the wholesale market and sell it to you after building in a spread. The price difference of this spread will depend on factors such as the size, volatility and value of the transaction and prevailing market rates. Typically, a spread is wider when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the transaction size is smaller • the transaction value is lower • volatility is higher, and vice versa. This spread is paid by you, but is incorporated into the quoted rates and is not an additional charge or free payable by you above those quoted rates. We earn a spread whenever you trade with us. Of course, all buying and selling is notional, because we typically do not actually deliver the currency –we offer a platform that lets you trade over currencies. Example of a spread: If we quote 1.3157 (bid) and 1.31591 (ask) for EUR/USD on our online platform, then the spread of every lot of EUR/USD is

	(1.31591 - 1.31571) x 100,000 (minimum lot size) = $20 USD.
